Tree planting season is here: planting @ schools

The rains in Malawi this year started in early December and this marked the beginning of tree planting season, with the seedlings being planted out from the many tree nurseries to their ultimate site (schools, farms and households).

Kapanda Secondary School received and planted out 100 different fruit trees, including Avocado, Guava, Orange, Tamarind, Pawpaw and Soursop varieties.

The students participated in the planting and learned about the many benefits of tree planting (both financial and to the environment), as well as the required responsibility associated with caring and nurturing the trees as they grow.
